Under the Canopy selects factories who use low-impact dyes that have minimal impact on the environment and require less rinsing in the production process, as well as factories who use the ETP (Effluent Treatment Plant) waste water treatment method, which removes hazardous chemicals to generate safe, clean, and reusable water.

Under The Canopy - Under The Canopy

Using a modified version of Victor Turner's triadic ritual process, Under the Canopy begins with the social history of racialized life in South Africa as a way of denoting the ritual process's phase of separation. Thomas argues that life in South Africa continues to be marked by economic and social inequality. This history of
